HERE AND THERE

World Open (June 29 - July 5)

B.C. players Bindi Cheng and Richard Huang were preregistered to participate in what is traditionally the largest Swiss on the American circuit, but as of the time of writing internet coverage had been slow to materialize. Standings and some live games should eventually be available, courtesy of Monroi.

Philadelphia International (June 25-29)

A number of B.C. and Canadian players took part in this nine-round norm tournament, held immediately before and in the same location as the above World Open. Three norms were achieved, by Americans Alex Lenderman and Samuel Shankland (GM norms) and Indian Siddharth Ravichandran (IM). The best Canadians were Bindi Cheng, Louie Jiang, Keith MacKinnon, and Karoly Szalay, who all finished with 5 points; a half point back were Eric Hansen, Gary Ng, and Ruokai Li. Currently only three games are available from the event, presumably more will subsequently become available.

RUBINSTEIN RULE

As previously reported in these columns, the new FIDE Laws of Chess come into effect today, July 1st. The most controversial change has been the elimination of the so-called Rubinstein rule (the 60 minutes that late players had to arrive at the chessboard), now replaced with a zero-tolerance default, albeit one that can be altered by individual events. The BCCF executive recently voted to retain the traditional Rubinstein rule via the following motion:

Motion: that regular time control events in the province of British Columbia retain a 60 minute default period for the late arrival of players, an option provided for under article 6.7 of the FIDE Laws of Chess, unless the rules of the competition specify otherwise. In a blitz or active event the default period shall be the time control unless the rules of the competition specify otherwise.

Thus for B.C. tournaments, the late arrival grace period is still one hour by default. However, it should be noted that individual competitions are free to adopt the zero-tolerance policy or another default of their own choosing if they so wish - check the tournament announcement or information of the event you are entering for clarification.

SUMMER PREVIEW

Summer is upon us, and it brings a number of local and national events in its wake. The next few weeks will see the Canadian Open, Closed, Women's, Junior, and Youth championships taking place, along with the B.C. Open. Particularly noteworthy is the Victoria Summer Chess Fest, July 20-28, including but not limited to the CYCC, B.C. Open, and Canadian Junior.

Most of these events will have a web presence, including live games, so take part in one or more of these events, as a player, spectator, or web viewer.

VANCOUVER CLOSED

After the breakdown of the 1974 B.C. Championship (see last issue) the players who withdrew, along with a few others, were invited to a separate event, the Vancouver Closed. Ironically, no Victoria players could participate in the original B.C. Championship due to its week long one-round-a-day schedule, but the Vancouver Closed, with its rounds on several consecutive weekends, was more palatable.

Jonathan Berry coasted to first place after winning his first six games; Harper was unable to catch him after a loss to Hill, who "put a great deal of effort into his games, but Hill's misfortune was not due to lack of ambition, but extreme accuracy on the part of all his opponents."
