Unive Open (October 18-26)

Leon Piasetski is currently playing in the 17th Unive Open, taking place at Hoogeveen in the Netherlands. Seventy-seven players have entered the nine-round Swiss, where the top seeds are GMs Rodshtein, L'Ami, Krasenkow, Ernst, Haslinger, and Moskalenko. Leon won his first round game and faces Sipke Ernst in round two. Tournament website

Vancouver Open (October 12-14)

Organized and directed by Eugenio Alonso Campos, this year's Vancouver Open took place at the Guru Angad Dev Elementary School in Surrey and attracted forty-two players. Despite the presence of three players rated over 2000 it was the number five and eight seeds, Joshua Doknjas and Primero Landingin, who came out on top with identical 5.0/6 scores. Close behind were the winners of the U2000 prizes, Paul Leblanc, Robin Yu, and Karl Cui, while the other class prizes went to Rinna Yu, Brian Sullivan, and Ethan Low (U1700), Paula Brewster and Neil Doknjas (U1400), and Daniel Du, Victor Zheng, and Jefferson Lee (U1200). Also notable were the number of players (nearly all underrated juniors) gaining more than 50 rating points, a consequence of the CFC's new bonus point system: Robin Yu (91), Karl Cui (87), Jofrel Landingin (109), Paula Brewster (151), Neil Doknjas (137), Victor Zheng (212), Leo Qu (154), Tony Xun (107), and Daniel Du (74). Continental Class (October 9-14)

Several Canadians made the trip to Arlington, Virginia to play in the Master Section of the 4th Annual Continental Class Championships, including James Chan and Max Gedajlovic from this province. They scored 3.5 and 3.0 points respectively in the nine-round Swiss event. The overall winner was Alexander Shabalov with 7.0 points, while a mere half point behind were Aleksander Rakhmanov and Canadian Leonid Gerzhoy, the latter achieving a GM norm in the process. Other Canadians in the field were Bindi Cheng (6.0) and Raja Panjwani (4.5). Tournament website

Knighmare Quads #2 (October 6)

Sixteen kids from grades 2 to 7 gathered at the Tommy Douglas Library in Burnaby on a beautiful Sunday afternoon on October 6 for the Knightmare Quads #2 Junior Chess Tournament. Children were divided into four sections based on their current ratings with four children per section. Under the careful coordination tournament director, Henry Chiu, the tournament started on time at 2:15 pm and concluded at 4:15pm. Every child received a commemorative certificate at the end of the tournament. Congratulations to the 1st Place winners of each section: Ivan Feng (Section A), Brandon Chan (Section B), Boya Yang (Section C), and Aaron Chiu (Section D). New ratings of all participants and crosstables are posted at Northwest Scholastic Rating within two weeks of the tournament. For those who want to participate in the next rated tournament, Knighmare Quads #3 will take place on November 3 at the same library.

October Active/Blitz (October 6)

For the first time in many a moon, chess returned to the Vancouver Bridge Centre on October 6. Organized by Luc Poitras, the originator of the monthly active tournaments now held at the Vancouver Chess School, this event featured the novel format of alternating four active games with three blitz games. A small but strong field took up the challenge – of the sixteen entrants, over half were rated over 1800. With seven rounds and sixteen players ties were the order of the day: Mayo Fuentebella, Butch Villavieja, and James Chan (the only players over 2000) shared the first prize, Jofrel Landingin, Don Monteith, and Andrew Lee shared the U2000, and Ngai To To and Curtis Catt split the U1600. Leo Qu won the upset prize by defeating Landingin. And if you missed your chance this time, watch for a second event with the same format early in January 2014. Results

98th B.C. CHAMPIONSHIP

The ninety-eighth edition of the B.C. Championship was held on the Thanksgiving long weekend at the Vancouver Chess School (Arbutus Shopping Centre) – many thanks to Maxim Doroshenko for providing the site. As in the last two years, there were three new faces in this year's Closed, all juniors: Jason Cao (12), Jack Cheng (18), and Ryan Lo (16), coincidentally the three winners of last year's Vancouver Open held alongside the 2012 Championship. With the addition of Tanraj Sohal this meant that half the field were juniors, setting up a potential battle between youth and experience.

Six of the eight spots in the Closed are filled from qualifying events, and this year only one of those qualifiers declined their invitation (Leon Piasetski from the Langley Open, who chose to play in Holland instead). Those who accepted were Butch Villavieja (defending champion), Jack Cheng (junior champion), Tanraj Sohal (BC Open), Jack Yoos (Grand Pacific Open), and Ryan Lo (Keres Memorial). The remaining spots were filled from the ratings list; as we didn't have to go far down the list the ratings were correspondingly high, resulting in the highest average rating (2272.5) for the championship since the year 2000. Five-time champion Jack Yoos was top-ranked and remained the favourite but his last two Closed appearances had been subpar – would he put it all together and win the title for the sixth time?

Jack Yoos won all his games with white and drew with black to amass 5.5 points, which normally would be sufficient to win the championship (the last time it wasn't was back in 2004). Unfortunately for him, Tanraj Sohal kept pace throughout and won his last-round game to secure the title by a half point. After three rounds Yoos and Sohal were tied with 2.5 points, closely followed by Villavieja and Pechisker. On the Sunday Yoos beat Villavieja and Villavieja beat Pechisker; Yoos and Sohal agreed to a short draw which left them tied for first after five rounds, now a full point ahead of the field. On the last day Sohal had to face the trailing players, Villavieja and Pechisker, whereas Yoos had already beaten both. Villavieja obtained a promising position on the white side of an Advanced French but Sohal turned it around, leaving Sohal and Yoos tied with 5.0 points going into the last round. Sohal ground down Pechisker's Benko Gambit (a slightly strange choice, given that Pechisker had done the same thing to Howard Wu on the white side of a Benko in a previous round) while Yoos was unable to generate enough winning chances on the black side of a Nimzo-Indian against Ryan Lo.

Thus at age sixteen Tanraj Sohal becomes, by this writer's reckoning, the youngest B.C. champion in the ninety-eight year history of the competition. Using today's definition of a junior as being under twenty, other junior winners would include Maurice Pratt (1951), Duncan Suttles (1963), Peter Biyiasas (1968), Bruce Harper (1973), and Loren Laceste (2011). Jack Yoos placed second by the smallest of margins, while everyone else (with the exception of Howard Wu who had a rough event) tied for third place on minus one. This time round experience largely came out ahead of youth. Despite being a junior Sohal was in sense on the side of experience; this was his fourth Closed and he has gradually improved his final standing in each of them, while this year's debutantes (Cao, Cheng, and Lo) took some time to adjust to the competition. Villavieja and Pechisker lost both their games on the last day and neither had any draws – fatigue at the end of a long event? They also played more moves than anyone else.

EACH PIECE TELLS A STORY by Nathan Divinsky

The White Queen Rook Pawn

The white queen rook pawn was the smallest of the white pawns. He seemed very young and I had a desire to embrace him, to give him a big fatherly hug. He was slightly plump but it looked more like baby fat than anything else. His costume was very Spanish, full of banners and insignia that gave an impression of latticework. There was a picture of Ruy Lopez dangling from his scabbard and I noticed a small Cuban flag next to a small but exquisite cameo of Capablanca.

He stood as erect as possible, gave me an exaggerated sweeping bow and asked me if I understood Spanish. I regretfully shook my head and he smiled at me. I was relieved when I heard English come out of his mouth.

“Dr. D.,” he said in a voice that broke between soprano and bass, “you have often defended the black side of the Ruy Lopez against grandmaster Yanofsky and you know the impact and force of a well-timed a2-a4 by White. But you may not be aware that the same motif can occur in a queen pawn opening. I would like to tell you of a game where this took place. It was in the 13th round of the famous tournament at New York, March 1927:

Capablanca, José Raúl - Spielmann, Rudolf [D38] Queen’s Gambit Declined

José Raúl Capablanca was at the height of his power. He won this great tournament two and a half points ahead of Alekhine, and he won the first brilliancy prize with this very game.

1.d4 d5 2.Nf3 e6 3.c4 Nd7 4.Nc3 Ngf6 5.Bg5 Bb4 This is too ambitious. However, in round one of this same tournament, Spielmann obtained a very good game with this line, against Capablanca.
6.cxd5 exd5 7.Qa4! In the first round game Capablanca played 7.Qb3 but after 7...c5! Black stood very well. 7...Bxc3+ 8.bxc3 0–0 9.e3 c5 10.Bd3 c4

White must now make a fundamental decision. He can try to gain something on the king side with 11.Bb1, 12.Qc2, 13.Ne5, or he can try to obtain pressure on the queen side. Capablanca, with his almost magical insight and feeling for position, decides to seek queen side pressure, and to rely on my sharp sword. 11.Bc2! Qe7 12.0-0 a6 13.Rfe1 Qe6 If 13...b5 14.Qa5 Bb7 15.Qc7 Rab8 16.Bxf6 gxf6 17.Qg3+. 14.Nd2 b5 15.Qa5 White now has two major threats. The first one, e3-e4, is standard and not quite as strong as it looks. The second, the subtle one, is a2-a4! Black's natural move is 15...Bb7 but this does not prevent e3-e4 for ever. Instead, Black attempts to stop e3-e4 permanently, thinking that he can parry a2-a4 on the fly. 15...Ne4 16.Nxe4 dxe4

17.a4 Qd5 Black expected that by attacking the queen bishop he would gain time to consolidate his queen side. Thus if 18.Bf4 Bb7 19.axb5 axb5 and everything is protected. But my threat is more serious than a mere bishop, and the great Capablanca appreciated me. 18.axb5! Qxg5 19.Bxe4 Rb8 If 19...Ra7 20.b6! Qxa5 21.bxa7! Qxa1 22.Rxa1 Nb6 23.Rb1 wins. 20.bxa6 Rb5 21.Qc7 Nb6 22.a7 Bh3 23.Reb1 Rxb1+ 24.Rxb1 f5 Hoping for 25.Qxb6 fxe4 26.g3 Qf5 27.f4 exf3 en passant; or 25.Rxb6 fxe4 26.Qg3 Qa5 27.Rb1 Be6 when Black wins – this was pointed out by Yates. 25.Bf3 f4 26.exf4 1-0

After 26...Rxf4 27.Rxb6 Rxf3 28.Rb8+ Rf8 29.Rxf8+ Kxf8 30.a8Q+ and mates.”

This was a real gem and I applauded vigorously. The queen rook pawn was very pleased. He became so enthusiastic that he gave me a big hug before he ran back to the ranks.

BI-WEEKLY BAFFLER by Valer Eugen Demian

Baffler #18:

White to play and draw. Another very interesting king and pawn endgame with a little twist. Once you figure out which rule governs it, the solution is not hard to put together. Have fun!

#17 Answer:

Were you able to put together a complete response? If not, here it is; if yes, just verify your lines:

1.g3+ fxg3+ 2.Kg2 Zugzwang. Black has to retreat. 2...Kh5 3.Kxg3 Kg5 Opposition. 4.f4+ exf4+ 5.Kf3 Again zugzwang. Black has to retreat. 5...Kg6 6.Kxf4 Kf6 Opposition. 7.e5+ dxe5+ 8.Ke4 Again zugzwang. Black has to retreat. 8...Kf7 9.Kxe5 Ke7 Opposition. 10.d6+ Kd8 Black cannot allow the c6-pawn to become a passer. 11.d7 Ke7 White has to be careful not to stalemate Black. 12.Kf5 Kd8 13.Kg6 Ke7 The last detail needed is to sacrifice the pawn and push the Black King irreversibly in the corner for a clear win. 14.d8=Q+ Kxd8 15.Kf7 Kc8 16.Ke7 Kb8 17.Kd7 Ka8 18.Kxc7 Ka7 19.Kd7 1-0
