2nd Seattle Chess Classic (August 15-19)

First held last summer, this Seattle tournament is a nine-round event in two sections with the top section rated by FIDE as well as the USCF. This year's event attracted forty-three players, down from seventy-four last year, including from this province Kate and William Jiang and Brian Sullivan. Most of the field seems to have been either juniors or retirees, a result of several of rounds being held on weekdays. James Tarjan was the only grandmaster present and placed first with 7.0/9, while FM Steven Breckenridge and Joseph Truelson tied for second; Kenji Hiebert was among those sharing the second U2400 and U2250 prizes. The Reserve Section was won by V. Anand (that's Vignesh, not Viswanathan); Brian and Kate both scored 5.0/9, while William's 4.0 points was sufficient for a share of the second U1450 prize. The tournament was organized by Josh Sinanan, directed by Fred Kleist, and held at the Seattle Chess Club. Standings and photos on facebook

11th Calgary International (August 14-19)

Jofrel Landingin

Severo Caluza

This year's edition of the Calgary International was, not unsurprisingly, dominated by the visiting players. There were five GMs in the field of twenty-four but like last year there wasn't a selection of beatable players with relatively high ratings, i.e., IMs, which meant the chance of achieving a norm was remote at best. This indeed was the case – Rafael Arruebarrena placed fifth with 5.5 points, but would have needed another 1.5 points to make an IM norm against the opposition he faced. Victor Mikhalevski and Steven Zierk (you may remember both of them from the Victoria Canadian Open in 2012) tied for first with 7.5/9, a full point ahead of Melikset Khachiyan in third – grandmasters all. Aman Hambleton was fourth but didn't win a prize, Arruebarrena was fifth and was top U2400. The other grandmaster, Enrico Sevillano, had an off event, losing to three players rated below 2200 for a final total of 5.0 points. Among those tied with him was Ian Zhao, who won the U2000 prize. Jofrel Landingin and Severo (Juni) Caluza were the two participants from BC but found it tough going, only scoring 2.0 points each. Tournament website standings and photos on facebook

Canadian Junior Championship (August 8-12)

The Canadian Junior lost a lot of its prestige around twenty years, when it converted from a round robin to a Swiss and the CYCC was introduced (incidentally Pascal Charbonneau won the last round robin in Vancouver in 1999). In the last dozen years the tournament has been on life support; Larry Bevand ran the championship as an invitational round robin again in 2013 (but without any BC representation), then it simply wasn't held for three years. Last year it was organized as a two section Swiss in Mississauga (near Toronto) and attracted around hundred players but was rather Ontariocentric.

This year, organized by Elevate My Chess, the championship made use of the facilities of Humber College in Toronto and was divided into four sections, a round robin invitational and three open sections by rating. Almost one hundred and fifty players participated, but the vast majority were from Ontario; there were five from BC, two from Quebec, and one from Manitoba. One hopes for a more nationally-representative event in future, but at least the championship seems to be reviving.

The entrants from this province were Brandon Zhu and William Bremner, completing their circuit of Central Canadian events (CYCC, Canadian Open, Quebec Open, Montreal Classic); they were joined by Sherry Tian, Rowan James, and Henry Yang. Brandon qualified for the Invitational Section from the BC Junior and received funding from the BCCF, Sherry was also an invited participant by rating (three of the ten invitees were girls); all except Brandon also received financial aid from the Chess2Inspire Junior Championship last January.

The new Canadian Junior Champion is FM Shawn Rodrigue-Lemieux from Quebec. The contest was extremely close, with the lead changing hands several times, and in fact Shawn only emerged victorious after a four-game playoff with FM Mark Plotkin – they tied for first with 7.0 points, a mere half point ahead of FM Nicholas Vettese and CM Hairan Liang. Brandon was largely outclassed in this company; he finished with 2.5 points, but these were scored against the three (lower-rated) girls. Brandon did sportingly allow at least a couple of his opponents to execute pretty checkmates. The story of the tournament from a BC perspective was Sherry Tian, whose 3.5 points were sufficient to garner the Top Girl trophy. However, it is the distribution of those points which is surprising; she scored four draws against the top six finishers, including both the players tied for first. The draw against Plotkin was somewhat miraculous (in a winning position Mark missed something and unsoundly gave up a piece to stand worse but Sherry didn't press the issue) but otherwise her opponents found her slightly passive but solid positions difficult to overcome. Witness Rodrigue-Lemieux, who achieved a good knight versus bad bishop ending but the position was so blocked he could not win, despite trying for over one hundred moves. He and Sherry now qualify for the World Junior Championship, scheduled for Turkey next month.

In the other sections, Jeffrey Zu was first in the Open with 7.5 points while William Bremner had another good result in tying for third; Ahmed Syed Ibrahim and Mao Fengxi tied for first in the U1800 Section with Ibrahim winning the playoff; and Harry Xue came first in the U1300 Section. European Excursions

Last issue Aiden Zhou was playing in the Pan-American Youth Championships in Santiago, Chile; this issue we find him, skipping a few time zones, in Latvia as a participant in the 8th Riga Technical University Open (August 6-12). The A Section in which Aiden played had almost two hundred and sixty participants, including twenty-four GMs and forty-four IMs. The overall winners were Armenian grandmasters Robert Hovhannisyanyan and Manuel Petrosian who tied for first with 7.5/9; Aiden performed slightly below his rating expectations in scoring 3.0 points. Tournament website standings Aiden is currently playing in the 20th Sants Open (August 17-26) along with Ethan and Kevin Low who have spent the summer on the Barcelona tournament circuit – report next issue.

Canadian Senior Championship (August 3-6)

Since 2010 the Canadian Senior has usually been held as part of the Kitchener Chess Festival in Southwestern Ontario – indeed, your editor helped direct the 2015 edition (my, how time flies!). In 2016 the tournament was held in conjunction with the BC Senior in Surrey, and the winner of the 65+ Section was our own Leon Piasetski. After returning to Kitchener for 2017, this year the event was hosted by the Calgary Chess Club and included six players from BC (presumably travelling to Alberta is more palatable than journeying to Ontario) – Severo Caluza, Richard Lapenna, Stephen Lester-Smith, Brian McLaren, Leon Piasetski, and Arpak Qanee. In the 50+ Section FM Ian Findley was the winner with a perfect 7.0/7; tied for second was BC senior co-champion Arpak Qanee and FM Dale Haessel with 5.0 points each. And in the 65+ Section IM Leon Piasetski repeated as champion, also with a perfect score, while Brian McLaren (another BC senior co-champion) scored 5.5 points for clear second place. Montreal Summer Classic (July 30 – August 3)

Last issue we left William Bremner about the play his last round game in the Open Section of the Montreal Summer Classic, Brandon Zhu having withdrawn after round four. William drew the game, finishing the event tied for third with 3.0 points including a first-round bye. The overall winner was Bora Yagiz on 4.0 points ahead of Ellis Steinberg with 3.5, but William actually beat both of them in the second and third rounds respectively. Brandon finished with 2.0/4. American IM Aleksandr Ostrovskiy won the adjunct invitational round robin, but no norms were registered. Standings

With one more qualifying event (the Langley Open) to go, here are those currently qualified for the BC Championship to be held on the Thanksgiving weekend at UBC:

Grigorii Morozov (defending co-champion)
Tanraj Sohal (defending co-champion)
Andrew Hemstapat (BC Junior)

Keith Mckinnon (BC Open)
Zulfikar Sali (Grand Pacific Open)
Stanislav Kriventsov (Keres Memorial)

The remainder of the field will be invited from the ratings list published this coming Wednesday.

Paul Burke NM

These days Paul Burke plays his chess almost exclusively online, but in his halcyon days he was one of our top players, organizer of the pre-master series of tournaments, and also a long-time editor of British Columbia Chess Reports/Counterplay (BC's former provincial chess magazine, for those young than thirty). Paul was recently awarded the national master title for his earlier playing exploits – congratulations!

BOWSER BUILDERS TOURNAMENT (August 12) by Robert McFetridge

Thanks very much to all participants in the 10th Bowser Builders Chess Tournament. Though it was a smaller turnout this year the competition was tough. As in recent years the Doknjas family prevailed, providing high level of competition for everyone. The local favourite, Ian Martinvosky of Courtenay, was held to a draw against Victoria Doknjas and John Doknjas and he was defeated by Joshua Doknjas. Ian was the only person to garner a half point from John, the eldest of the Doknjas brothers. Paul Leblanc of Victoria and Philip Boyle of Courtenay were the only ones to garner half points from Neil Doknjas, the youngest of the brothers. Two other juniors, Declan and Brodin, both of Qualicum Beach, played in their first Bowser Builders Tournament. Declan gained one point through forfeiture by his opponent who was absent in round one. Though they did not gain other points we think they learned through exposure in the tournament and their participation is appreciated.

Special thanks are due to the sponsors at Bowser Builders, Mac Snobelin and Betsy Poel who provided breakfast and lunch for the players going above and beyond their sponsorship of the primary tournament prizes. Standings more photos

SEMIAHMOO OPEN (August 4-6)

(photos by Lawrence Thiessen)

Last year the inaugural Semiahmoo Open, the brainchild of first-time organizer Jeffrey Street, was held at the Pacific Inn Resort on the outskirts of White Rock and attracted ninety-eight participants including three IMs. This year's second edition returned to the same site but a different room, one with windows; we managed to largely keep the boards away from the direct sunlight, and the natural light and fresh air compensated for a somewhat dim interior. The three IMs were missing as were any other title holders, but ninety-four players still entered the tournament, basically an identical number as last year if one acknowledges the Canadian Senior on the same weekend syphoned off several potential entrants.

The tournament was held in four sections but the rating boundaries differed slightly from last year. The Premier had nineteen participants, ten of them over 2000. On paper the leading competitors should have been the two masters in the field, Jorge Nunez Asencio and Andrew Hemstapat, but Andrew lost his first two games and instead it turned into a race between Jorge and the returning Alisher Sanetullaev. They pulled ahead of the pack and were tied with 4.5 points going into the last round (one draw with each other). In round six Jorge had a quick draw with Kenji Hiebert but Alisher won his game, thus Alisher took clear first place and the associated trophy while Jorge was clear second. Louis Cheng tied for third with Kenji Hiebert, and Daniel Salcedo, Neil Doknjas, Callum Lehingrat, and Maven Zheng split the U2000 prize. With their fine results Neil and Callum also pushed their ratings over 2000 for the first time, thus becoming BC's newest experts.

The twenty-six player U1900 Section included a visitor from the Czech Republic and a brother and sister from the Netherlands, but it was Brian Yang, Paul Leblanc, and Kate Jiang who tied for first and split the first, second, and U1700 prizes; Brian won the trophy on tiebreak. Ethan Song went undefeated in winning the U1500 Section with 5.0 points, a half-point ahead of Eric Gu in second place, while Yawen Zheng was the top U1300. And the U1100 Section was won by Jason Sunardi who gave up just a single half-point bye; Frank Zhou and Jayden Qu shared second and the U900 prize, and Jesse Bateman earned the top unrated prize and trophy. Various board prizes were also randomly awarded. The Sunday night blitz tournament attracted thirty-eight participants and was won by Jorge Nunez Asencio and one of our Dutch visitors, Sebastiaan Janse – they scored 5.5/6 each. Carson Roesch from Blaine and ZhiQi Ryan Huang sared the U1500 prize.

BRUCE HARPER ANNOTATES

Opponent – Harper, Bruce [B06] ICC 3 0 Internet Chess Club

I like this game for two reasons. The first is that White was a (non-elite) grandmaster, with a higher ICC rating than mine. The second is that White got destroyed.

1.c4 [3:00] 1...g6 [3:00] 2.d4 [2:58] 2...Bg7 [3:00] 3.e4 [2:57] 3...d6 [2:59] 4.Nc3 [2:56] 4...Nc6 [2:58] 5.Nge2 [2:55] 5...e5 [2:57] 6.Be3 [2:53] 6...Nh6 [2:55] 7.f3 [2:49] 7...f5 [2:54] 8.d5 [2:44] 8...Ne7 [2:52] 9.Qd2 [2:43] 9...Nf7 [2:51]

A tableau in this variation. White normally continues with 10.c5, 10.g3, 10.h3?! or, most commonly, 10.O–O–O. In any case, it's clear that the correct plan for White involves opening lines with c4–c5. 10.f4? [2:37] What's this? Spending a tempo (7.f3, 10.f4) to open the centre and activate Black's pieces cannot be good. The idea behind 10.f4? must be to prevent Black from blocking the position with ...f5–f4. If White's hope was to have a game where there are open lines and active pieces, he is not disappointed. 10...0–0 [2:47] 11.g3 [2:35] 11...fxe4 [2:36] Naturally Black opens up the position, since he has a lead in development. 12.Nxe4 [2:33] 12...Nf5 [2:33]

13.Bf2 [2:11] White thought for a long time on this move, as the realization of what was happening sank in. 13...exf4 [2:22] 14.gxf4 [2:11] Of course White would prefer to have played 14. Nxf4, but then comes 14...Re8, with a painful pin on the e-file. 14...Re8 [2:17] 15.Qd3 [2:08] 15...Qe7 [2:06] Naturally enough, the engine likes 15...Bxb2 - not just for the pawn, but to prevent White from castling queenside. 16.Bg2?! [2:01]

16...Nh4 [2:04] 17.Bxh4 [1:59] 17...Qxh4+ [2:04] 18.N4g3 [1:55] 18...Bf5 [1:52] 19.Qb3 [1:53]

19.Qd2 was more tenacious. I thought it was now time to become violent, although 19...Qxf4 was simple and strong. 19...Rxe2+! [1:42] 20.Kxe2 [1:48] 20...Re8+ [1:41] 21.Kd1 [1:34] 21...Qxf4 [1:38]

White's king is now caught in a terrible crossfire.
22.Bf3 [1:14] 22...Qd4+ [1:24] White resigns. 0-1

JOHN PRENTICE AND GEORGE BRYANT

We are coming up on the fortieth anniversary of the death of George Herbert Bryant (January 2, 1907 – August 28, 1978), a name which is likely unfamiliar to the vast majority of chess players. A more familiar name should be that of John Gerald Prentice (February 26, 1907 - February 19, 1987), previously discussed in Bulletin #334. Simply put, Bryant was Prentice's right hand man, his secretary both in the world of business (Prentice was a founder and sometime President and CEO of Canadian Forest Products) and chess:

For many years BCCF and CFC Secretary and FIDE Secretary for the CFC, George Bryant was the silent force behind organized chess in Canada for many years. During the late 1950's and early 1960's the very existence of the CFC depended on the hard work of George Bryant and John Prentice. As a player, he was a strong Class "B"; in his later years he did not compete in tournaments. His nature seemed too amiable and relaxed for the rigours of tournament play. He will be sorely missed by all who knew him and by many who didn't. [CFC Bulletin #32, January/February 1979]

Prentice and Bryant were both from affluent Jewish families in Fin-de-Siècle Vienna. Born Georg Heinrich Breuer, Bryant was a descendant of the textile industrialist Isaac Mautner. His grandfather was Doctor Josef Breuer, whose pioneering work with a patient known as Anna O. laid the foundation for psychoanalysis – he was a mentor to Sigmund Freud. Georg Breuer trained as a lawyer as did Hans Pick (Prentice), but Hans joined his family's textile manufacturing firm along with his brother-in-law, Leopold Bloch-Bauer. The latter's aunt was Adele Bloch-Bauer, subject of two portraits by Gustav Klimt; Leopold's sister was [Maria Altmann, noted for winning a successful court case against the Austrian government for return of these and other works by Klimt which had been stolen by the Nazis.] Both Hans Pick and Leopold Bloch-Bauer fled Austria with their families at the time of the Anschluss in 1938; Breuer remained behind to help other Jews emigrate, but himself was forced to leave the following year. Pick and Bloch-Bauer settled in BC (Leopold had visited the Rockies on hunting trips earlier in the 1930s and had fallen in love with Canada), changed their names to John Prentice and Leopold Bentley, and started a lumber manufacturing firm, Pacific Veneer in New Westminster. The company flourished during the war years due to the demand for plywood for aircraft production; a saw mill and logging operations were added to the company, and the enterprises formed the nucleus of the later Canadian Forest Products (Canfor).

Adele Bloch-Bauer I by Gustav Klimt (detail)

After fleeing Austria Breuer went to England, and when the war started he joined the Auxiliary Military Pioneer Corps (renamed simply Pioneer Corps soon thereafter). The corps was designed for light engineering tasks, and at the time was the only British military unit in which enemy aliens such as Breuer could serve. He was one of the last to leave when the British Expeditionary Force was withdrawn via Dunkirk in 1940. In 1943 Breuer was recruited by the Special Operations Executive, Churchill's "Ministry of Ungentlemanly Warfare," and trained as a secret agent. At this point his name was anglicised but retained the same initials – thus Georg Heinrich Breuer became George Herbert Bryant. Late in the war he was parachuted into the Upper Styria region of Austria where he helped prevent the destruction of the Zeltweg airport by the retreating Germans. From 1945 to 1948 Bryant was part of the British Austrian Legal Unit, an advisory body to the British Occupation Authority in Vienna. He immigrated to Canada and joined the management of Canadian Forest Products, acting as the private secretary for John Prentice. Bryant was treasurer or auditor for the BCCF in the 1950s, and was Prentice's secretary in all the latter's chess undertakings, be it BCCF President, CFC President (for sixteen years), or FIDE Vice-President (FIDE representative for thirty years).

George H. Bryant was an old friend of mine. Our relationship goes back to the early 20s when we grew up together in Vienna, Austria. While the family came to Canada in the late 30s, George stayed in Europe. He was with the British Army parachuting into Austria during the late stages of the war. He came to Canada about two years later, helping my late father and me in various aspects of our endeavours. He has been Secretary of the BC Chess Federation, the Chess Federation of Canada, and FIDE at various periods. These offices overlapped at some periods of time.

His contributions to the development of Chess in Canada were quite significant and cover a period from the early 50s to last year. This is a long time to work for a cause you believe in. It is not stating too much if I go on record that without George's assistance I could not have possibly managed to make what little contribution I made to Canadian Chess. He deserves that his memory be held in high respect by Chess players in Canada. [John Prentice, CFC Bulletin #33 (March/April 1979)]

We only have one game played by George Bryant, a loss to the man who would share the BC Championship later that spring with Jack Taylor, Tauno Saila.
