B.C. - WA SCHOLASTIC MATCH (INTERMAT)

The 16th edition of this annual scholastic match, held at the Chess4Life Centre in Bellevue, WA, on December 2nd despite a bout of snow and ice, resulted in a comfortable 28-20 victory for the home team. This year the Washington squad was chosen entirely by rating (previously qualification tournaments had been held), leading to a stronger overall team. For example, neither of Washington's grade seven players, Michael Lee (2124) and Howard Chen (1872), took part in the match last year. At the same time, a number of the players B.C. had relied on in the past were either unavailable or withdrew at the last minute, leaving the B.C. side a little depleted. The result was to some degree predictable: Washington scored a commanding 14.5-9.5 in the first round, and coasted home with 13.5-10.5 in the second to win the match. In terms of individual results, B.C. players who won both their games were Louie Jiang (grade 8), Noam Davies (11), and Bindi Cheng (12); others with a plus score were Tanraj Sohal (5), Arik Milner (6), and Richard Huang (8). On the Washington side, Nathaniel Yee and Eric Liu swept their grade one opponents, as did Michael Lee and Howard Chen in grade seven. Others on the Washington team with perfect scores were Justin Yu (2), Samuel Meisner (3), Niles Desmarais (9), and Andy May (10), while Casey Xing and Jaan Budzianowski (both grade 4), Nathan Lee (5), and Michael Omori (6) also had plus scores.

Despite (or because of!) the score all the participants enjoyed themselves: much shared analysis and playing of bughouse took place, and both sides shared a meal graciously provided by the Washington hosts. Many thanks to organizers Karen Dixon (Washington) and Katherine Davies (B.C.), to TD Jon Licht, and everyone else who contributed to a successful event.

Washington now holds an 8-6 lead in the overall series:

This year's event was won by a newcomer to B.C. chess, Dennis Epple. The possessor of a 2144 FIDE rating, Dennis played in the German U-17 championship in 1997 but chesswise has been largely inactive in this century. He is currently a graduate student in Mathematics at the University of Victoria. Further details can be found at the link below, but conspicuous by their non-mention are Roger Patterson (organizer) and Lynn Stringer (director) - this tournament wouldn't have taken place had they not decided to step in and continue the tradition. We need more like them. If you care about tournament chess in this province, don't take your organizers for granted. Support them - give them some incentive to continue running events for you.

WASHINGTON THANKSGIVING SCHOLASTIC

Held on the first day of the Washington Class Championship, this scholastic event attracted three Canadians, all of whom won trophies! Donovan Zhao tied for third (sixth on tiebreak) in the fifty-one player Grade 4-6 Section, while Jonah Lee (sixth on tiebreak) and Jacob Jensen (ninth) were in the forty-five player K-3 Section. Jonah also won an additional upset prize. Congratulations to all!

LESSONS FROM GM SLUGFEST, PART 3 by Jonathan Berry

The first four rounds took place at the Chess 4 Life Center (no no no, nobody is going to get confused with Chess Life magazine or America's Foundation 4 Chess), on Bel-Red (Bellevue-Redmond, get it?), just across the highway from a local landmark, a gun shop. I don't remember the name of the gun shop, but like to think of it as Donne's Guns. The subtext could be "It tolls for thee", or maybe "You done if you don't got our gun". We were locked out of the building for a few minutes. I took the opportunity to tell Eric Tangborn about my eustachion tube problem. Eric kindly advised me to see a doctor, though not right away. He explained how he used to swim a lot, developed similar problems in his right ear, and after a while became deaf in that ear. So once again, I was wondering, at least at the back of my mind, whether my head was going to explode during the game. The good news was that the medication was beginning to clear the congestion.

Berry, Jonathan - Readey, John [B07] GM Slugfest Bellevue (3), 14.10.2006

1.d4 d6 So much for my opening preparation. The small file of games by my opponent did not have any examples of the Pirc Defence. 2.e4 Nf6 3.Nc3 g6 4.Be3 Brits coined the term "150 Attack" for this system. As in, anybody with a British grading of 150 (equivalent to a CFC rating of about 1700) has enough Chesstzpah to learn this and at least frighten a stronger opponent. 4...c6 5.Qd2 Not so long ago I would always play 5.f3, but in fact there is no reason to fear Ng4 because after Bg5 Black can drive the annoying bishop away only at the cost of weakening his pawn structure: h6 Bh4. 5.h3, 5.Nf3 and even 5.a4 justly share in the popularity. 5...b5 6.f3 More topical is 6.Bd3. 6...Nbd7 7.a4 Hmm. Where do I get these crazy ideas? 7.g4 is the main line. 7...b4 8.Nd1 a5 9.c3 bxc3 10.Nxc3 Novelty. Considering the dismal score that White has with 10.bxc3, one might give this move a !?, but more likely White should play better earlier. White has a backward b2-pawn that is good for little. Black's equivalent, the c6-pawn, can be protected with pleasure because it controls the crucial squares d5 and b5. 10...Bg7 11.h4 Nb6 12.Bh6 Bxh6 13.Qxh6 e5 14.dxe5 dxe5 15.h5

Black has the solid move that he plays in the game, but according to an early Fritz, both gxh5 and Nxh5 are just fine, too. And there I was, certain that he couldn't take the pawn. 15...Qe7 15...gxh5; 15...Nxh5 16.Rxh5 (16.Rd1 Nd7) 16...gxh5 17.Qxc6+ (17.Qg7 Rf8 18.Qxe5+ Be6 19.Qxh5) 17...Bd7 18.Qd6. 16.Rd1?! Twenty-two minutes on a toothless gambit. Black can take the pawn and get a good game, or decline it and also get a good game. Readey was rightly happy with his position, as the c6- and e5-pawns control important squares. A better try was 16.hxg6 fxg6 17.Qg5 keeping an eye on the e5-pawn, thus delaying Black's full mobilization. 16...Be6 17.hxg6 fxg6 18.Nh3 Bb3 19.Rd2 Nxa4 I found out later that John Readey is famous locally for consuming pawns, and not always in a healthy way. Here the morsel is not poisoned. Incidentally, the world was no longer sounding like I was at the bottom of a pond. 20.Nxa4 Bxa4 21.Bc4

Around here was my low point in the GM Slugfest. I had zero points out of two, and in this third game a compensation glass half full of optimism. 21...Qb4? Looks very strong, pinning the rook, but isolates the queen from key defensive points. It turns out to be not so bad that White can attack a rook: Qg7 Rf8 and resign time is nearing for White, but that White can attack a pawn. Both 21...Bb5 22.Bxb5 cxb5 and 21...Qc5 leave White with, hmm, let's say insufficient compensation for the pawn. 22.Qg5! Nd7? After 22...Qe7! Black is OK. 23.Be6 Nc5 24.Qf6? I was sooooo happy to have this move, as Qxe5 loses the queen to a fork. But according to Fritz 4, 24.Nf2! is stronger! 24...Nxe6 25.Qf6 Rf8 26.Qxe6+ Qe7 27.Qxe7+

Kxe7 28.Rxh7+ leaving White with the advantage. I didn't see Nf2. 24...Rf8 25.Bf7+! Rxf7 26.Qxe5+ Kf8 Better than 26...Ne6 27.Ng5 Qc4 28.Qxe6+ Qxe6 29.Nxe6+/= 27.Qh8+ Ke7 28.Qxa8 Nb3?? Horrible and tragic. For my opponent, this time. After 28...Nd3+ 29.Ke2 Bb5 White needs to go on a limb to get winning chances. 30.Rhd1 (A likely draw is 30.Rxd3 Qxb2+ 31.Ke3 Bxd3 32.Kxd3 Qb3+ 33.Ke2 Qc2+ 34.Ke3 Qb3+, though after 35.Kf2? Qb6+ 36.Kg3 Rf8 Black wins.) 30...Nxb2+ 31.Kf2 Nxd1+ 32.Rxd1 Qc5+ 33.Kg3 Qe5+ 34.f4 Qc7 35.Qh8 c5 (35...g5 36.Nxg5!!). 29.Qd8+ Readey overlooked this move (time trouble was not a factor), which leads to a crude finish, the kind which I delight in, according to Bruce Harper. You ain't seen nothin' yet, Bruce. 29...Ke6 30.Ng5+ Ke5 31.Nxf7+ Ke6 32.Qd7+ Kf6 33.e5+ Black resigns: 2-0 (BAP scoring)

2006 CANADIAN CHESS PLAYER OF THE YEAR

"Canadian Chess Player of the Year" is the brain-child of David Cohen: an annual award, determined by Canadian chess journalists through balloting, to recognize the achievements of one outstanding player and to help publicize Canadian Chess. This year's winner is Kevin Spraggett, who has been having good results in Europe of late and recently became the first Canadian to push his FIDE-rating over 2600.

Here are the results of the voting:

Kevin Spraggett - 23
Igor Zugic - 15
Pascal Charbonneau - 5
Zoltan Sarosy - 5
Nikolay Noritsyn - 3
Tomas Krnan - 2
Mark Bluvshstein - 1
Raja Panjwani - 1

Congratulations to Kevin Spraggett, our 2006 Canadian Chess Player of the Year!!

THE HISTORY OF CORRESPONDENCE CHESS IN CANADA

"How did a handful of chess organizers overcome Canada's vast open spaces to hold together a band of correspondence chess enthusiasts?" That is the question posed on the back cover of this brand-new publication from Bob Long's Iowa-based Thinkers' Press. A handsome 250-page hardcover volume measuring some 7½ by 10 inches, the book is the culmination of over twenty-five years of research by co-author J. Ken MacDonald. Beginning with a brief overview of the history of correspondence chess in general, the nine chapters divide into two main sections. Chapters 1-4 examine the beginnings of correspondence chess in Canada within a North American context and the efforts of Canadians to create a national organization distinct from the various North American associations, while Chapters 5-9 concentrate on the Canadian Correspondence Chess Association (CCCA), from its fledgling origins in the 1920s to its increasing importance on the world stage at the end of the Twentieth Century. Coverage in both areas is not complete, but for different reasons. The first section is as comprehensive as is currently possible, but there are inevitably gaps where information is no longer extant or still awaits (re)discovery. In the second section the situation is the opposite: the CCCA holds the distinction of producing the world's longest-running correspondence chess publication, resulting in a glut of available material. Here the authors have chosen to concentrate on some key figures (players Walter Muir and Frank Yerhoff, organizers Bernard Freedman and John Cleeve), along with three events which brought Canada to the attention of the world: the Eino Heilimo Memorial, which gave Canada its first correspondence GM (Duncan Suttles), the CCCA 60th anniversary tournament, which resulted in a further three Canadian GMCs (Jonathan Berry, Bob Kiviaho, and Jean Hébert), and Canada's bronze-medal finish in the 11th ICCF Olympiad.

Overall the book has been deeply-researched and presents a detailed answer to the initial question. The text includes 172 game scores (most annotated from contemporary sources), many of which have not seen the light of day for a long time. Diagrams are plentiful, although there are no photographs and only a few crosstables. The font is larger than usual, but makes life easy for older eyes. Two appendices list CCCA title holders and Canadian correspondence champions respectively, and a bibliography is included. My main reservations concern the indexing and lack of citations. Only one index is provided, a game index, alphabetized solely by the White player (to find a specific Black player one must eyeball the entire list). A general or name index would have been much appreciated: I know there is biographical information on James Narraway in the book, but I have no easy way of finding it. There are also scant citations to original sources, which is an obstacle to those who wish to continue research in this area. For example, the Preface mentions a nineteenth-century article by John Shaw which covered many pre-1886 Canadian correspondence events, but no indication is given where this article may be found.

Despite these reservations the book is an outstanding addition to the literature of Canadian chess history, and for anyone interested in correspondence chess this is the only readily-available source for much of this information. Do not delay if you intend to acquire this monograph - only 266 copies were printed, and the publisher indicates there are no plans to do a second print run. Purchasing details can be obtained from J. Ken MacDonald at jkm@sympatico.ca.
