B.C. WOMEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP by Bruce Harper

The B.C. Women's Championship was held June 29 - July 2, 2003, in Vancouver. The top four ranked female players in the province took part: Yamei Wang, Valentina Goutor, Tiffany Tang and Lesley Cheng.

The event was a double-round robin. As anticipated, the tournament became a race between the top two rated players: Yamei Wang (rated 1943) and Valentina Goutor (rated 1800). Interestingly, the tournament was last held in 2000 as a two-game match between the same two players, with Valentina (then rated 1598) winning in a playoff against Yamei (then rated 1771). With the players getting much stronger, and other contenders emerging (quite apart from Tiffany and Lesley), the B.C. Women's Championship seems to have a bright future.

In the first match, Tiffany achieving a winning position against Valentina, but allowed her opponent a chance which Valentina seized without hesitation. The result was a tough win for Valentina. In their rematch, Valentina crushed her opponent like a bug.

Yamei's games with Lesley showed that the favourites couldn't take anything for granted. In the first game, Lesley obtained a reasonable position, then ruined it (as she tends to do...) In the rematch, as Black, Lesley fended off her opponent and, by means of an inspired positional exchange sacrifice, reached a blocked position which couldn't possibly be lost. Then she lost by what looked like an attempt to win, but was really just a thoughtless series of moves - at least according to Lesley. It's really hard to tell (see the game, below).

Then Tiffany played Yamei and beat her in a very well-played Ruy Lopez (at least from Tiffany's point of view). Yamei vowed to give up the bad line she played and, as far as is known, has kept her word. In the rematch, Yamei crushed her opponent like a bug. This raised concerns whether Tiffany was able to play in the second games of the same day. In the third match, it turned out she could.

Meanwhile, Valentina won smoothly with Black when Lesley mangled the 9.Bd2 system which Taimanov employed against Fischer's King's Indian Defence in their 1971 match in Vancouver. But in the rematch, Lesley quickly got an advantage in the Rat and was doing well until she decided to castle long - right into White's attack. The result was ugly, and Valentina led by a point.

The favourites then played their two games. In the first, Yamei was White and achieved little with 2.c3 against Valentina's Sicilian. But the resulting position was tense and Valentina lost the thread, then allowed a devastating knight fork which collapsed her position like a cheap tent. They were tied.

The finish was a bit anti-climatic. Yamei fell into an opening trap and lost a pawn. Valentina didn't play as well as she could have, but managed to win a second pawn, then lose it back, before the position stabilized into a winning ending. Smelling blood, Valentina demonstrated very good technique a simplified into a winning king and pawn ending.

The fight for third was a bit scambly. In their first game, Tiffany let her opponent slip away and Lesley scored her first half point of the tournament. But in the rematch, Lesley blundered a piece and lost horribly.

The final scores:

Valentina Goutor:	5
Yamei Wang:	4
Tiffany Tang:	2.5
Lesley Chang:	.5

2003 CANADIAN YOUTH CHESS CHAMPIONSHIP by Bruce Harper

The 2003 CYCC was held in Kapuskasing, Ontario, and was such an interesting experience, both on and off the board, that I plan to write a report on it for En Passant. This preliminary report will necessarily be brief.

In summary, no B.C. player won a trip to Greece, although B.C. players in general did very well. At the risk of leaving someone out (all scores are for 7 rounds unless otherwise indicated):

Boys U10: Elliot Raymer: 3.5.

Boys U12: Evan Raymer: 5.0 (fourth after a playoff).

Girls U12: Brianna Reid: 2.5 (out of 6, including a bye, but with a draw against the top-rated player, rated 900 points higher! Way to go - and you should have won, too!)

Boys U14: Alexander Reid: 4.

Girls U14: Valentina Goutor: 5.5 (second after a playoff); Lara Heppenstall:

5.5 (third after a playoff); Lesley Cheng, Laura Harper: 4 (fourth/fifth).

Boys U16: Fanhao Meng: 5.5 (second after a playoff); Jamie Harper: 3.5.

Girls U16: Andrea Cheng: 2.

Girls U18: Yamei Wang: 3 (second after a playoff).

The tournament was well organized and, up to a point, well run. However, Yamei Wang was the victim of an obvious and unnecessary injustice. The girls U18 groups consisted of three players, one of whom was rated 600 points lower than the other two. Yamei drew both games with her real rival, Dina Kagrananov, of Olympiad Team fame - missing several wins in the second game. With an entire day at their disposal, the tournament powers-that-be declared that first place would be decided by a single playoff game (draw for colours), each player having 30 minutes. This when two real games could have been played!

The many B.C. players who stayed home because they thought Kapuskasing was too far, too hot, too small or too buggy made a big mistake. Kapuskasing is a lovely town full of wonderful people, and the event was far better organized than the 2002 CYCC in Montreal.

Special mention should be made of Lara Heppenstall, who scored only one draw in Montreal, and was in contention for first place in Kapuskasing; and both Alexander and Brianna Reid, who not only drove across Canada to get to the event (well, okay, their parents only let them drive in Saskatchewan) but who are also starting to scare their opponents.

[Some games are available via the official website, Welcome to the 2003 Canadian Youth Chess Championship and the Canadian Open Chess, there are apparently more to come; see also CYCC 2003]

CANADIAN OPEN 2003

A number of B.C. players are currently playing in the Canadian Open in Kapuskasing - see the website for details: Welcome to the 2003 Canadian Youth Chess Championship and the Canadian Open Chess

AN OPEN LETTER from Bruce Harper

I learned a short time ago that the CFC has awarded the 2004 CYCC and Canadian Open to Kapuskasing for the second year in a row. This means these two events will be held in eastern Canada for four consecutive years (Sackville, Montreal, Kapuskasing, Kapuskasing).

For people living in Vancouver, this is manifestly unfair. The location should rotate, provided there are reasonable bids from different areas of the country. The Kapuskasing organizers did a very good job, should be encouraged to hold other events, and there's no doubt the Canadian Open should be in Toronto at some point in the future. But in 2004 these events should be in the west.

People seem to be obsessing about the Canadian Open, but in fact the CYCC attracts at least as many participants.

The bottom line? I will not attend these events in 2004 if they are held in Kapuskasing, neither will my kids, and I will encourage all other BC players to boycott the event. I think most BC players, especially juniors and parents, will feel the same way, and the 2004 CYCC and Canadian Open will be held without BC participating. This may well break BC players of the habit of going to the CYCC, so the damage may well extend past 2004. Congratulations CFC!

For BC and Alberta players reading this, you might want to start planning on attending the 2004 Western Canadian Open, which will likely directly conflict with the Kapuskasing events. I would quite happily donate 10% of the cost of attending the 2003 Kapuskasing events to such a tournament - if everyone did so, we might not even have to charge an entry fee...

I invite anyone in Kapuskasing who reads this (Jonathan?) to pass this e-mail on to the CFC. They are being very short-sighted in letting the euphoria of this year's events affect their decision for next year's events. If the events are really held in Kapuskasing in 2004, they will be ruined as national events for years .

NICK BEQO ANNOTATES

H. Seid - N. Beqo [D02] Shock and Awe Active (1), 14.06.2003

I do not pay much attention to rapid games, but there are two reasons I am annotating this one: 1. Some friends of mine that love Slav structures, asked me about my thoughts on this game 2. It was the only game I lost in this active tournament, and the only game of mine that was published in BCCF Bulletin.

1.Nf3 d5 This is the second time I play against this player; again rapid game, and again with Black pieces. The previous game I chose Queen's Indian, and I had a huge advantage from the opening. However, I failed to find the winning moves, and in the end I even blundered losing the game. Seid is a practical player that plays pretty fast, and does not risk much, in my opinion. 2.d4 c6 3.e3 Nf6 4.Bd3 Bg4 5.h3 Bh5 6.Nbd2 White's play is passive. As Black I am happy to develop pieces, and complete my opening in peace. 6...Nbd7 7.0-0 [At least, here white should go for 7.c4] 7...e6 [7...e5 8.g4 e4 9.gxh5] 8.Re1 Be7 [8...c5 9.e4 dxe4 10.Nxe4 cxd4] 9.c4 0-0 10.Qb3?! 10...Qc7= White that has the right of the first move, has not developed the Bc1 yet, whereas Black has completed the opening already! 11.g4 Bg6 12.Bxg6 hxg6 13.e4 dxe4 [13...Rfe8 14.e5 (14.cxd5 cxd5 15.e5 Nh7) 14...dxc4 15.Nxc4 Nd5] 14.Nxe4 Nxe4 15.Rxe4 Nf6 [At this moment, I needed some time to find a good plan, but I looked at the clock and I had spent 15 minutes. Thus, I had other 15 minutes left. I found it hard to play a rapid game, and writing the moves down at the same time. Let alone, this was my first rapid tournament in 2003. I refused 15...b6 because I liked the diagonal d8-a5 for my Queen.; I also refused

15...Rfe8 because the well-known plan Nf8-g6 does not work.; 15...c5 16.Bf4 Bd6 17.Bxd6 Qxd6 18.Rd1!+/= (18.Qxb7?? Rfb8)] 16.Re2 Rfd8 [After playing the last move, I realized that 16...Rfe8 was where I needed my Rook.] 17.Bg5 Rac8?! [In such a positions the thematic moves are e5 and c5, but they require careful calculations, otherwise they might turn bad. Of course, I did not have time for that, so I continued my strategy to play around white's d4 pawn.After 17...c5 18.d5 exd5 19.cxd5 c4=/+ Black has a better game.;
 During the game, I was thinking to admit my mistake and play 17...Re8 ; 17...c5]
 18.Rae1! Re8 [18...Rd7] 19.Ne5 Nd7 [19...Nxb4!?] 20.Bxe7 Rxe7 21.Nf3 Qb6?! [
 Black should not go for a queen exchange.
 21...Rd8=] 22.Qe3 [>=22.Qxb6 Nxb6 White has more space, but Black has a solid position. In my opinion this is the critical position of the game, where white might have slightly better chances, but not enough for an advantage.] 22...Qa6
 23.b3 Qa5 24.Qf4 Qc7?! 25.Qg5 [>=25.Qxc7 Rxc7 26.d5 cxd5 27.cxd5 Rc3 28.Re3
 Rxe3 29.Rxe3 e5 30.Rc3 Nf8+/= and the comments of move 22 apply all the same.]
 25...Nf8 26.Re4 [26.h4! Nh7 27.Qe3 Nf6] 26...Rd7 White seems to have an imaginary attack, but in fact, Black has a rock solid position, whereas White has some weaknesses.
 27.Qh4 Qd8 28.g5 [28.Ng5] 28...c5 Maybe, not the right moment. [28...Qa5 first, was probably better.; 28...Qa5 29.Ne5 Re7 30.a4 Rd8
 31.R1e3 c5] 29.Rd1 cxd4 [29...Qa5 30.Rd2 cxd4 31.Rexd4 Rcd8 32.Rxd7 Rxd7
 33.Rxd7
 Nxd7 34.Qd4 Nf8=] 30.Rexd4 Rxd4 31.Qxd4 Qxd4 [31...Qa5~~] 32.Rxd4 f6 33.h4
 Kf7~~ I did not write after this move, and I blitzed out the rest of the game. The position looks unclear to me, but I would prefer Black. After Ke7, e5, Ne6 Black has the outposts d4, f4 for the knight, and the endgame looks promising.
 Eventually I blundered by helping white to attack my queenside pawns, and lost the game. I shared the first place, and I received $15.00 prize, the same amount as I paid for the entry fee. I was surprised to learn that only 30% of the entry fees went to the prizes.
 On the other hand, my active rating of 2315 ELO was very high compare to the rest of the players. Everything was at risk from my side:). 1-0

Time control: G15

Rounds: 11 Round Robin. 30min. break after the 6th round (3:00-3:30)

Registrations: via e-mail at: nickbeqo@hotmail.com Dead line: Friday 11:00 PM.

Bring your own chess set, and clock.

Note:

a) Sportsmanship is required. No draw offers or draw claims, unless DEAD DRAW!

This rule is not only because it is a speed chess tournament, but also because there would be no room for pre-arrangements in order to split the prize. It will be unfair to other players.

b) Rated events require at least 25 min time control. This will reduce both, the number of players for a round robin-event, and also the prizes, since a part of entry fees has to go to Federation. Depends on the number of players, I might run two events at the same time:

1. unrated tournament with 12 players, and 15 min time control.
2. rated tournament with 6 players, and 25 min time control.

c) I am organizing this tournament in order to help chess players, especially in Fraser Valley, as it is too far to play in Croatian Center or Vancouver Bridge Center. Therefore, chess players are going to make the tournament rules, not me. I am open to suggestions and make the respective changes.

Remember: 100% of the entry fees go to prizes!
