VANCOUVER JANUARY OPEN

The first open tournament of the new year attracted thirty-three players to the Vancouver Bridge Centre on the January 11-13 weekend. The Open Section included six players over 2000 and some welcome returnees to tournament chess, especially Ben Daswani and Richard Reid. The event also featured an unusually large number of A players: several up-and-coming junior players have now reached that level, aided in part by the ratings boon.

Top-ranked Bindi Cheng gave up two draws on the final day of competition to finish with a score of 4.0/5; Lucas Davies only had one draw, but a bye to watch a hockey game(!) meant he couldn't overtake Bindi; and Pavel Trochtchanovitch lost to Bindi in the second round but won the rest of his games, although the vagaries of the pairings meant he didn't have to play any of the top finishers other than Bindi. The end result: a three-way tie for first between Cheng, Davies, and Trochtchanovitch. Juniors Chang He Li and Jack Cheng split the U1900 prizes with 3.0/5. The Reserve Section featured a tight race between Shahrouz Khoraman and Bindi's younger brother Frank, with Khoraman ultimately taking the first prize by half a point.

Your editor was the organizer and TD, but an event like this cannot happen without assistance; my thanks to Katherine Davies, Glen Lee, Jay Zhao, and everyone else who helped make the tournament a success. The next event at this location will be the Leap Year Open, beginning on February 29.

ROBERT JAMES FISCHER (1943 - 2008)

As reported in the world press, the 11th World Champion Bobby Fischer died last Thursday in Reykjavik, Iceland of kidney failure; he was sixty-four years old. Given that much has been written about Fischer's life and chess, I will not attempt to comment on areas which are well-documented elsewhere. Instead, I will concentrate on Fischer's connections to British Columbia: his games with our two strongest players, grandmasters Duncan Suttles and Peter Biyiasas, and his 1971 Vancouver Candidates' match with Mark Taimanov.

FISCHER AND SUTTLES

Suttles played Fischer twice; although he lost both times, it was not without a fight:

"Today Suttles had to face the mighty Fischer and even his enthusiasm for chess was somewhat dulled by the prospect. But Fischer respects Suttles and believes that Suttles sees very deeply into a position." [Nathan Divinsky, Canadian Chess Chat, April 1971]

FISCHER AND BIYIASAS

Fischer stayed for a time with Peter Biyiasas after the latter had moved to the U.S.:

Bobby had been known to like San Francisco. In 1981 he had lived at the apartment of Greek-born grandmaster Peter Biyiasas and his wife, Ruth Haring. Through Buff [Jim Buff, a friend of Fischer's], Biyiasas had invited Fischer to live with them. One day Buff called. "Peter, he's coming up. Bobby's coming up on the bus to stay with you!" Fischer arrived one early March morning with his suitcase of clothes and vitamins and a large orange juice squeezer that he had bought in Mexico. He stayed for two months, returned to Los Angeles in the summer, then came back in the fall to stay two more months. They swam in the ocean, played pinball machines, bowled, went to movies, squeezed oranges and played baseball in Golden Gate Park. Fischer shagged Buff's fly balls and pegged them back to the plate as hard as he could. "How was it coming in?" asked Bobby.

He was more overpowering at the chessboard with Biyiasas. During his four months in San Francisco, he beat Biyiasas 17 straight speed games before Biyiasas finally surrendered. "He was too good," Biyiasas says. "There was no use in playing him. It wasn't interesting. I was getting beaten, and it wasn't clear to me why. It wasn't like I made this mistake or that mistake. It was like I was being gradually outplayed, from the start. He wasn't taking any time to think. The most depressing thing about it is that I wasn't even getting out of the middle game to an endgame. I don't ever remember as endgame. He honestly believes there is no one for him to play, no one worthy of him. I played him, and I can attest to that. It's not interesting."

As time passed, Fischer's taste for the eccentric and his preoccupation with Jews became evident to Biyiasas. Biyiasas says Fischer referred to Jews as "Yids," telling him that one controlled the fluctuating price of the world's gold. "He is fascinated by who this might be," Biyiasas says. Fischer had what he called Chinese healthy brain pills ("Good for headaches," Fischer told him) and Mexican rattlesnake pills ("Good for general health"). He had vitamins in a suitcase, and he invited Biyiasas to help himself to them.

One day, Biyiasas tried to open the suitcase but found it locked. Later, Biyiasas asked him about this. "It's not locked for you," Fischer said. "If the Commies come to poison me, I don't want to make it easy for them."

[From an article by William Nack in Sports Illustrated, July 29, 1985. When dealing with legendary reclusive figures, sometimes it's hard to separate fact from fiction. In other sources the number of games played between Fischer and Biyiasas vary from ten to one hundred; seventeen speed games (playable in less than three hours) seems a rather small number considering Fischer is supposed to have stayed with Biyiasas for four months.]

FISCHER - TAIMANOV 1971 (reprinted from Bulletin #96)

June 1st, 1971: game 6, after Black's 13th move.

Thirty-five years ago Vancouver hosted one of the highest-level chess competitions ever to take place in B.C., the Fischer - Taimanov quarter-final candidates match. Controversy often followed Fischer in the wake of his demands over playing conditions, and this match was no exception. He originally wanted no spectators present, but: "The match was scheduled to be played at the UBC Graduate Centre, but on the 12th the Russians vetoed it. Besides disagreeing with the no spectators rule of Fischer, Taimanov felt claustrophobic in the 20' x 35' room: 'I can't breathe...'. Discussions between the USSR, the USA, and the CFC went on until midnight. On the 13th the factions toured UBC, searching for another spot. One was almost found at the Centre's library, but Classics dean McGregor vetoed this. This prompted a flood of anti-UBC, anti-CFC, anti-Canadian rhetoric from Kotov, who declared that Canada was a poor country, for chess especially. 'Spain, yes, Belgrade, yes. But Canada, no, no.' After Fischer rejected Taimanov's proposal of the Education faculty auditorium, the S.U.B. theatre was agreed upon. For Fischer, this meant spectators; for the Russians, the only victory they won in the match. 'Let's play,' said Fischer, 'I'm willing to play anywhere.'" [Northwest Chess, June 1971]

Fischer's subsequent 6-0 demolition of Taimanov is now the stuff of legend, but the games were a lot closer than the final score indicates. Taimanov's play was marred by several blunders, brought on through a combination of Fischer's intense will to win and the pressure of being the first Soviet road-block on Fischer's path to the world championship. Taimanov complained of suffering from high blood pressure, but as Nathan Divinsky noted, "Fischer's play is calculated to give any opponent high blood pressure." Bozidar Kazic was the chief arbiter, Elod Macskasy his assistant. B.C. Champion Peter Biyiasas operated the onstage demo board, while Ken Morton performed similar duties with a second demo board. The ending of the fourth game has since acquired classic status and appears in many endgame texts.

Flex RR

From Ben Daswani:

I will be organising a double-RR in Vancouver. It will be a flex event. Everyone will have everyone else's contact information and players play their games where/whenever they and their opponents agree. For the sake of competitiveness, this event will be open to players rated from 1800-2200. The entry fee is $3 (to pay for the CFC rating fee). There are no prizes. So far two players are signed up. Both are in the 2000-2100 range (I'm one of them).

Email bdaswani@interchange.ubc.ca if you're interested.
