2020 BC Open: many stayed home, even more showed up (Paul Leblanc)

The backdrop for this year's BC Open was the Coronavirus (COVID-19). Although the BC Centre for Disease Control assessed that risk of contacting this flu virus was low and cases in all of Canada were in single digits, some were concerned that a public gathering such as a chess tournament would present some level of risk. The event was heading for another attendance record when, during the week prior to the tournament, over forty withdrawals were received. It was interesting to see, however, that on most days there were more new entries than withdrawals. In the end, one hundred and sixty-one players showed up, making this year's tournament the second largest BC Open in history.

The Premier Section was competing for the Joe Oszvald Cup for the first time. Mr. Oszvald, the winner of the 1975 BC Open and donor of the trophy, had intended to play but had to withdraw a few days beforehand. The Premier Section featured some very entertaining and sharp games. Of thirty games played by the top five players, only five were draws. Going into the last round, Jorge Nunez Asencio held the lead with a 5-0 score, a full point ahead of a group of five players at 4-0. Nunez came to BC two years ago seeking a better life. So far it is working out well for him. He is a professional chess trainer and he runs his own chess school, White Rock Youth Club where he has about forty students. Key to Asencio's success was a win against IM Raymond Kaufman in the penultimate round. However, he succumbed to a fierce attack from Grigorii Morozov in the last round, allowing Morozov as well as Keith MacKinnon and Tanraj Sohal to share a four-way tie for BC Open Champion. For Sohal, it will be the seventh time that his name appears on the Joe Oszvald Cup. Keith MacKinnon will advance to the BC Closed as a result of having the best tie-break score.

The U1900 Section was won handily with 5.5-0.5 by Jason Williamson of Nanaimo. Williamson has been gradually getting back into form after a 16-year break from competitive chess. Veronica Guo was a surprise second-place finisher in the U1900 with 5.0-1.0 and a large increase in her rating. Harleen Singh Jaspal achieved the only perfect score of the tournament, winning the U1500 Section and building on his impressive near-perfect score of 4.5-0.5 and U1600 first place finish at the Victoria Open in January. Luke Shu and Andrew Styffe shared first and second place in the U1000 Section and Brad Chiu won the top unrated prize.

The prize fund was $3,250. The venue was the Executive Hotel Vancouver Airport in Richmond which has become a home for the BC Open and Paul Keres Memorial for several years.

International Arbiter Stephen Wright was the TD, assisted by Joe Soliven.

The tournament was organized by Paul Leblanc of Victoria Chess, backed up by Roger Patterson. Victoria Chess, formed originally to organize the Grand Pacific Open in 2007, has steadily grown since then to take on the BC Open, Paul Keres Memorial, Victoria Open, BC vs Washington match, the Jack Taylor Memorial, the BC Senior Championship and this year will introduce the BC vs Alberta match to take place in Vernon 3-5 July. BROWSING FOR ENDGAMES by Dan Scoones

In this position the six-time BC Open champion could maintain the pressure with 23.Qd4 but instead he decides to simplify into an ending where his opponent will be challenged to defend successfully. 23.Qc6!? Qxc6 If 23...Bc8 then 24.gxf6 gxf6 25.Rfd1 with continuing pressure. 24.Rxc6 Bb7 25.Rc7 fxg5 More tenacious was 25...Rf7, trying to neutralize White's control of the seventh rank.

26.a4! White sees what is coming and employs a small finesse to get his a-pawn closer to the queening square with gain of time. 26...Rb2

27.Rxb7! The geometric motif! 27...Rxb7 28.Bxd5+ Rff7 29.fxc5 Rbd7

30.Rxf7?! After some consideration I have decided to mark this as dubious, because it gives Black an opportunity to stay in the game with 30...Rxd5!? After 31.Rxa7 Rxc5 32.Kf2 White is definitely better but it is not clear that he can win by force. Instead, White could destroy Black's last remaining hopes with 30.Bxf7!+ Rxf7 31.g6!! (weakening Black's pawn structure and restricting his king) 31...hxg6 (Black cannot avoid the exchange of rooks because 31...Rb7? runs into the shot 32.Rf8+! Kxf8 33.gxh7! and the pawn cannot be stopped) 32.Rxf7 Kxf7 33.Kf2 Ke6 34.Ke3 Ke5 35.a5! a6 36.Kd3 and White's passed e-pawn will decide the game. Black's counterplay is either ineffective, too slow, or both. 30...Rxf7? The final error, after which it is all smooth sailing for White.

31.Kg2! Of course not 31.Bxf7+? Kxf7 32.Kf2 Kg6 33.Ke3 Kxg5 and Black draws. The pin gives White an extra tempo for centralizing his king. 31...Kf8 32.Bxf7 Kxf7 33.Kf3 Ke6 34.Ke4 g6 35.g4 Kd6 36.Kd4 Ke6 37.e4 Kd6 38.e5+ Ke6 39.Ke4 Kd7 40.Kd5 Ke7 In this hopeless position Black finally resigned. 1–0

Yang, Jingyun (Ryan) – Moura, Eduardo [C41] BC op Richmond (3.7), 16.02.2020

Black is a pawn down but has the superior minor piece and a potential target on b2. White must be at least somewhat better here, but it is difficult to see how he can make progress. He starts by attacking Black's a-pawn. 33.Ra8 Bc5!? Black has spotted a clever trap and with this possibility in mind he invites White to seek an exchange of rooks. 34.Ra5 Be7!? 35.Re5!? Falling into the trap. Almost anything else is better. 35...Rxe5 36.Nxe5 Bf6! Now White should try to consolidate the extra pawn with 37.f4, but after 37...g5! 38.g3 h5! 39.Kf2 h4! 40.Kf3 hxg3 41.Kxg3 Bg7! 42.Kg4 gxf4 43.Kxf4 Bh6+ 44.Kf5 Bc1 45.Nc4 Bxb2 it becomes clear that White must head for the draw with 46.Ke4. However, White did not sense the looming danger... 37.Nc4?

37...Bxb2! A killer shot straight from the pages of Van Perlo's Endgame Tactics! 38.Ke2 Of course 38.Nxb2 allows 38...a3!, and Black's pawn goes through to queen. But the text move is equally hopeless since White will have to surrender his knight. 38...a3 39.Nxa3 Bxa3 40.f4 Kg6 41.g4 Be7 Black now has a purely technical task and it will not surprise the reader to learn that it caused him no difficulties. The remaining moves were 42.Kf3 Bh4 43.Ke4 Kf6 44.Kd5 Bg3 45.Ke4 Ke6 46.Kf3 Bh4 47.Ke4 Be1 48.Kd4 Bb4 49.Ke4 Be7 50.Kd4 Bd8 51.Ke4 Bc7 52.Kf3 Kd5 53.h4 Kd4 54.h5 Bd8 55.g5 hxg5 56.Kg4 gxf4 57.Kxf4 Ba5 58.Kf5 Bd2 59.Kg6 Bh6 60.Kf7 Ke5 61.Kg6 Kf4 62.Kh7 Kg5 63.Kg8 Kxh5 64.Kf7 g5 65.Kg8 g4 66.Kh7 g3 67.Kg8 g2 68.Kf7 g1Q

Black has been manoeuvring for some time but has not made any serious progress. If he does not try to make something of his outside passed pawn, the game will end in a draw, either by repetition or through the 50-move rule. Therefore: 65...g4 66.Be2 g3 67.Bf3 Nd7 68.Bg2 Nc5 69.Bf3 Nb3 70.Bg2 Nd4 71.Bf1 Nc2+ 72.Kf3 g2! 73.Kxg2 Ne3+ 74.Kf2 Nxf1 75.Kxf1 Kxe4 Black has managed to liquidate into a pawn ending and will soon be a pawn ahead. But it is not enough to win...

76.Ke2? Missing his golden opportunity. After 76.c5! dxc5 77.Ke2 White gains the opposition and draws, since with the pawn on his fourth rank, Black lacks the spare tempo he needs to take over the opposition and force the pawn through to queen. 76...Kd4 77.c5 Too late! The contrast with the last note is shown by the line 77.Kd2 Kxc4 78.Kc2. Although White has the opposition, he cannot maintain it because here Black has a spare tempo with his d-pawn: 78...d5! 79.Kd2 Kd4 and Black wins. 77...Kxc5 78.Kd3 Kd5 The same difference. It is Black who has the opposition. 79.Ke3 Kc4 80.Ke2 Kc3 81.Kd1 Kd3 82.Ke1 d5 and White finally resigned. (0–1) As Larry Evans once wrote, pawn endings are to chess what putting is to golf.

THE FELL CUP

One of the chess items in the possession of Dave Hunter when he passed away in the summer of 2016 was a large trophy, some seventeen inches in height, previously awarded to champions of the Vancouver Chess Club.

The inscription reads

Vancouver Chess Club
Major Championship
Presented By
J.P. Fell

So who was J.P. Fell? We find the following biography of Lieutenant Colonel James Pemberton Fell (1872-1960) on the J.P. Fell Pipe Band website:

“James Pemberton Fell was born in Staffordshire England in 1872. Educated at Harrow School in London, England he joined the Territorial Army, rising to the rank of Captain with the Yorkshire Artillery Regiment. After moving to North Vancouver in 1897 he helped layout what is today the City of North Vancouver. Pemberton and Fell Avenues are both named after this early pioneer.

On February 11, 1911 approval was given to establish 6 Field Company, Canadian Engineers and Major J.P. Fell was appointed to command the company. In August 1914, Captain Fell led the first contingent from North Vancouver overseas. He subsequently commanded both the 1st and 7th Field Companies of the Canadian Engineers on the Western Front. Upon completion of his battlefield duties he was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel and commanded the Canadian Engineer

Training Depot in England. In 1919, he returned to North Vancouver and between 1921 and 1926 he served as the Commander Royal Canadian Engineers for 11 Military District (BC). Between 1926 and 1946 he served as the Honorary Lieutenant Colonel of 6 Field Company and from 1946 to 1960 as Honorary Lieutenant Colonel of 7 Field Engineer Regiment.

J.P. Fell was one of the founders of the BC Corps of Commissionaires and served as its chairman from 1931 to 1954. He was also provincial chairman of the National Canadian War Services Fund in 1941 and the president of the Vancouver chapter of the Canadian Club in 1946. In 1920 he was awarded the Order of the British Empire and in 1960 he received the Canadian Forces Decoration, with two clasps, in recognition of more than fifty years service with the Canadian Army.”

An illustrious career, but research has not given any indication of Fell's involvement in chess or his relationship to the Vancouver Chess Club – was he a member or merely a patron?

There are also questions surrounding the cup itself. A new base was added to the trophy around 1999 as the space for plates on the original cup became full. Yet there are only four early plates on the upper portion, followed by another set of four some sixty years later:

1936 John M. Ewing
1937 C.F. Millar
1938 H. Christiansen
1942 D. Creemer

95-95 Gilbert Sommerfeld
96-97 Toni Deline
97-98 John Hallam
98-99 John Hallam

One wonders what happened between 1938 and 1942, or between 1942 and 1995. There are physical indications that plates have been removed and the space reused, for example note the outline of a previous plate and nail holes in this detail:

Given this evidence there is the question of why these particular early plates remain and others were replaced. An additional complication is the history of the club itself; founded in 1913, the Vancouver Chess Club was the pre-eminent club in the city until 1946 when the City Chess Club came into being. Most of the stronger players switched allegiance to the City Club and the original Vancouver Club gradually faded, although it was still fielding teams in the Vancouver Chess League at least as late as the mid-1950s. By 1970 the City Chess Club had taken on the name of the now defunct Vancouver Chess Club, so the plates on the cup beginning in 1995 are actually for the championship of a different organization. Presumably the Cup remained unused after the demise of the original club until it was offered to the new club in the mid-1990s.

The remaining plates are all on the added base and reflect the trophy's continued use until the club was forced to leave its long-time home (the YMCA on Burrard) due to renovations and subsequently ceased operations. One curious feature: in 2001-2002 there was a tie and two names appear on the plate, but in 1999-2000 and 2004-2005 there are two plates each with one name. Were the latter also ties but spread over two plates, or were there two competitions in those years?
